ETHNOHISTORICAL RESEARCH METHODS

ANG 6480 - W01

Spring 2011. 11:00 AM – 1:50 PM. Wednesdays
Wolfsonian museum and research center, Florida International University,
1001 Washington Avenue, Miami Beach. First Floor Class Room
Offered by the Department of Global and Sociocultural Studies
Open to all FIU Graduate Students or by Instructor Permission
Version of January 11, 2010

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Ethnohistorical research methods enable the compilation and analysis of a wide array of data sources for the production of sociocultural theories, histories, processes and contexts. The student in this course will be immersed in a variety of data sources and taught the skills to combine written texts, material objects, graphic images, interviews and ethnographic fieldnotes. Triangulation of multiple research methods builds a chronological and diachronic interpretation of source materials, validates their integrity, and places them in a social and cultural context. Through the exploration, description, organization and analysis of these data sources the trained researcher using NVivo, a specialized computer software, can bring new explanations and interpretations to the way people adapt to their changing environments in the context of globalization and modernity.

COURSE OBJECTIVES: What you should be able to do on completion of this course

1. Use sociocultural theories, methods and data for explaining globalization and modernity.
2. Efficiently locate, access and utilize collections and archives for research purposes.
3. Know the assumptions, validity and reliability of methods and techniques for the study of material objects, texts, photographs, interviews, maps, graphic images, ethnographies, etc.
4. Comfortably triangulate multiple methods for the analysis and presentation of qualitative and quantitative research.
5. Use NVivo software for project management, organization, analysis, and report writing.
6. Enhance your skills for the production of a professional journal publication.

LOCATION AND RESOURCES:

Students are encouraged to utilize their own theories, research topics and data from local, national and international archives/collections. Otherwise, FIU's Wolfsonian collections would be the primary location for students to access sources. The world renowned collections of the Wolfsonian contain evidence of globalization processes from 1850 to 1950. These include library and material culture items for understanding the social, cultural and technological transformations in manufacturing, medicine, travel, transportation, the built environment, and the home. A comparative perspective will focus inquiry on the chronicities of modernity that affect identities, social inequalities, health and well-being.

This course was developed with support from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation that the Wolfsonian received to enhance the academic use of the Wolfsonian collections. Students will have privileged access to over 100,000 books, works on paper, paintings, furniture and decorative design objects. Wolfsonian staff time and expertise are dedicated through this grant to support students during this semester. As students develop research topics, Museum staff would individually guide students to items of interest.

Syllabus - Ethnohistorical Research Methods

(Location Continued)

Class meets once a week in the Wolfsonian second floor conference room. One meeting will be held at the Wolfsonian storage annex a few blocks away. Between class meetings each student will become immersed in their selected data sources, guided by Wolfsonian staff. The Wolfsonian library is open on Mondays through Saturdays 9:00 to 5:00 by appointment. Free parking is available on the streets west of Washington Avenue between 7am and 6pm, Monday through Fridays. Paid parking is at meters or at the City Parking Garage two blocks north on 12th Street.

COMPUTER SOFTWARE

Each student would be trained to use NVivo software from QSR International for project management, coding, analysis, and report writing. NVivo has the capacity to digitally incorporate texts, field notes, photographs, interviews, GIS maps, audio and video as data sources. A transcription function facilitates the production of texts from video and audio files. All of these data sources are coded in ways that the researcher considers important. Codes can be categorized and recombined as themes emerge with discourse and content analysis. As the project grows in complexity, data sources can be queried for specific themes producing new hypertexts. Generation of models and matrices represent the theory and data graphically and quantitatively. NVivo software facilitates the testing of theory based hypotheses or the generation of grounded theories.

INSTRUCTOR

Dennis Wiedman, Ph.D. Anthropologist

Associate Professor. Department of Global and Sociocultural Studies.

Office: Maidique Campus, SIPA 327, 305-348-2262

Office Hours: Wednesdays following the class at the Wolfsonian,
Thursdays Mondays 1:30 to 3:30 pm or by appointment.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Each class meeting we focus on specific data sources, learn an NVivo function, discuss the readings, and demonstrate student course projects. In-class and out-of-class exercises facilitate the learning experience. This is a hands-on-course where students are required out-of-class to become immersed in collections and archives, organize and analyze data using NVivo, and then come to class prepared to share that experience. Wolfsonian staff are available to assist in use of their collections and archives. Specific object requests need advanced notification.

A student must complete all of the course requirements in order to earn a passing grade.

1) Course Project Paper and Demonstration: This course project and final essay demonstrates your skills in methods and analysis for triangulating texts, objects, and graphic image primary sources. Topic selection and methods are developed throughout the course. A two-page essay proposal that includes your research methods and data sources must be submitted by the scheduled date. This 15 to 20 page essay ranges from 3750 words to 5,000 words of text, not including notes and references cited.

During each class meeting selected students will discuss the progress of their research project, including insights, themes, methodological issues, analytic techniques, and NVivo strategies, etc.

Syllabus - Ethnohistorical Research Methods

2) Project Presentation: At the end of the semester each student will have 20 minutes to present their completed project to the class and visitors.

3) Source Specialist: Each student will become a specialist on a specific data source learning how to locate, access, organize, analyze and report on this source. The source specialist presents these at the class meeting dedicated to that data source. Special readings should be recommended by the Source Specialist for other student's to read two weeks prior to the scheduled presentation. The source specialist also helps to answer questions and facilitates the use of this source.

4) Exercises: In-class and out-of-class assignments enable students to express their perspectives, course comprehension and research abilities while demonstrating their analytical, writing and presentation skills. Most exercises incorporate essential methodological techniques using NVivo features. Best scores are awarded to exercises that integrate the course presentations and readings with new research and written with perfect punctuation, format and logic.

5) Readings Leader: Individual students lead the discussion of the assigned weekly readings by reviewing the main points then leading a discussion of major issues. Two specific discussion points should be posted in Blackboard: Discussions by 5:00 PM on Monday evening the day prior to the class.

Style and Format: All written assignments and PowerPoint Presentations must use the format and style used by the American Anthropologist. Follow style guidelines in Blackboard:Instructions: "Writing Professional Research Papers Using the Style of the American Anthropologist." For essays use MS Word, double space using 1 inch top, bottom, and side margins. Use Times Roman 12 point font. Endnotes and "References Cited" sections should follow text. Do not use footnotes. Simply staple pages together, do not use a binder or fancy cover. Do not use separate cover page. Place name, course title and date single-spaced on top left of first page. Name should appear on the top left of each page. Center page numbers at the bottom of the page.

Timeliness: When specified by the instructor both printed and electronic versions are necessary in order to receive a grade. Unless otherwise noted, printed exercises and essays are due within 10 minutes of the beginning of the class on the due date; electronic versions in Blackboard one hour before the class. Papers received after the due time, but within 24 hours receive one letter grade less than earned, thereafter they receive a letter grade reduction for each week it is late. These are not accepted after two weeks. A written note from a health practitioner is required in order not to receive reduced points.

Classroom Etiquette: During class time cell phones must be turned off and out of sight. Class discussions demonstrate the student's interest in the course, understanding of the materials, as well as critical thinking and verbal skills. Active, courteous and informed participation is highly desired.

Syllabus - Ethnohistorical Research Methods

ATTENDANCE

In order to succeed in this course, students are expected to attend every class. Avoid arriving late or leaving early since this disrupts the presentation and student concentration. Course materials, exercises and discussions presented in class are the responsibility of the student. In-class exercises are the instructor's way of providing regular feedback to students while promoting attendance.

Optional Ways to Get a Better Grade

Students who want to ensure a better grade can produce a product or plan/prototype from their course project paper. This could range from plans to a completed product, such as a museum exhibit, film, video, conference poster, etc.

ACADEMIC ETHICS

It is strictly prohibited to submit as one's own work material provided by a professional research agency, the Internet, or other persons. It is considered "plagiarism" to not cite the sources of your information. All sources must be identified in-text and in a "References Cited" section using the style of the American Anthropologist. Student's who violate these principles receive a grade of "F" for the course. Written exercises and papers must be submitted to "Turnitin.com" for an assessment of originality. The instructor has the authority to consider academic misconduct charges that carry considerable penalties. Please consult the University student handbook for further information on plagiarism and its consequences.

WEB ASSISTED COURSE MATERIALS – CE6/Blackboard.

Regularly check CE/Blackboard for discussions, emails, exercise instructions and deadlines.

Content: Contains important course information.

Email: Send emails to selected individuals using the drop down list.

Email the instructor only within Blackboard Email.

Discussions: Here you can send your comments to everyone in the class for discussion.

Compose your item within a specific topic or for a new item post it in "Main."

Announcements: This is where the instructor communicates with the students.

It is important to read everything posted here.

 At the end of the semester the total number of points for the Exercises may be more or less than the Course Points. Exercise points are calculated using the following formula: A) Total points received divided by B) Total possible points, multiplied by C) Course Points = D) Course Points Earned. $(A / B) \times C = D$

COURSE TOPICS AND READING SCHEDULE

Assigned readings are to be completed by class meeting. Beginning in week five we focus on two specific data sources each week. Dates and types of data sources may change based on those selected by students. Additional readings will be recommended by the student source specialist. NVivo exercises will specify readings in Bazeley 2007 and QSR's 2010 NVivo 9 Fundamentals.

Week One: January 12

Course Overview
 Introductions and Welcomes
 Blackboard CE/6
 Course Syllabus, Readings and Requirements
 NVivo Introduction and Access
 Topic: Course Theme of Globalization and Modernity

Week Two: January 19

Topic: Locating, Accessing and Ethically Utilizing Collections and Archives

Readings:

Barber & Berdan: Prologue & Acknowledgements xi-xiv; Introduction 3; The Scope of Ethnohistory 5-32. 36 pps.
 Bazeley: Preface vii; Ch. 1. Perspectives. Pages 1-20
 Ch. 2. Starting a Project. Pages 21-38. 38 pps
 Schnapp 2009: Preface. Cathy Leff. 14-18
 Preface. Mirko Zardini. 20-23
 Fast (slow) Modern. Jeffrey Knapp. 26-37
 Wiedman 2010a. Globalizing the Chronicities of Modernity

Week Three: January 26.

Topic: Collections, Collectors, & Survivals

Readings:

Bazeley - Ch 3. Making Data Records. Pages 39-58. 19 pps
 Barber & Berdan - Ch. 13 Working in Archives and Elsewhere. Pages 293-302. 9 pps
